WHAT'S FOR DINNER

Recipe Disks for use with
Computer Chef Cookbook and Recipe File

Dr. James J. Gillogly

The two disks* in this package contain over two hundred recipes for your cooking and dining enjoyment. Using these disks requires the COMPUTER CHEF program, which is not included. COMPUTER CHEF can be purchased separately from The Software Toolworks. The COMPUTER CHEF program is also included with THE BEST OF WOK TALK, which contains 106 recipes from all regions of China.

Let's Eat In Tonight (marked Disk 2) gives you 107 main and side dish recipes including entrees, soups, salads and breads.

The Secret's Out (Disk 1) contains 108 dessert, baked goods and special occasion recipes to provide that crowning touch.

(* - On 8" and large capacity 5" disk formats, you will receive one distribution disk containing all recipe files. The Secret's Out consists of files RECIPES.1 through RECIPES.7. Let's Eat In Tonight is files RECIPES.8 through RECIPES.12.)

We recommend that you first make a copy of the disks and store the originals in a safe place, using your copies for day-to-day CHEF operation.

If you have enough disk drives, you may mount one or both of the enclosed disks at the same time as your original COMPUTER CHEF disk, and CHEF will automatically search the recipe files on all mounted disks.

On many computers, your disks will have room for more recipes than the distribution disks contain. If you have large capacity disks, you can combine recipe disks by copying files from several distribution disks onto a single new disk. But remember that the files on each disk are numbered RECIPES.1, RECIPES.2, etc. You will need to give new numbers to the recipe files you add, being careful to keep them in serial order.

If you can not fit all your recipes on your computer at once, see your COMPUTER CHEF or BEST OF WOK TALK manual for instructions on how to reset recipe disks.

MORE RECIPES FOR USE WITH COMPUTER CHEF

Additional recipe disks, already formatted for use with COMPUTER CHEF, are available from your local computer store or direct from The Software Toolworks.

The original COMPUTER CHEF software package includes over 70 recipes compiled by three working mothers who use them all the time to provide nutritious, delicious meals for their families without giving up their many activities to stay home all day and cook. Their culinary styles range from "meat and potatoes" through international to Southern California, and this range is reflected in the variety of the recipes. Some are Grandmother's, handed-down and jealously guarded until now. Some were collected during travels and sojourns abroad. Others have been pried out of friends and family over the years.

THE BEST OF WOK TALK, #2 in the Computer Chef Series, is a unique combination of technology and culinary expertise which makes exotic Chinese cooking easier than ever. The editors of Wok Talk, popular Chinese cookery newsletter, have assembled over 100 recipes from all regions of China, organized on disk by the COMPUTER CHEF software, which is included.

To help introduce the novice to the fascinating world of Chinese cookery, THE BEST OF WOK TALK includes a 24-page booklet on Chinese cooking techniques. But WOK TALK is not just for beginners; the great variety of authentic Chinese recipes can challenge and assist the experienced Chinese chef.

CHOCOLATE BYTES, #4 in the Computer Chef Series, contains over 100 dessert, beverage and main dish recipes using the world's favorite snack food. These recipes originally appeared in Chocolate News, the bimonthly newsletter which also features articles on all aspects of chocolate, and sources of chocolate and related products. For chocoholics who are past the brownie and fudge stage, we guarantee that such spectacular productions as Desperation Cake, Chocolate Zucchini Bread, Oklahoma Crude, and The Best Chocolate Cake in the World will arouse the interest of even the most jaded chocolate lover.

More titles in the Computer Chef Series will appear soon. For the latest releases, ask your local computer retailer or The Software Toolworks.
